

Men's application form

We sincerely appreciate your commitment. This form is intended for men wishing to support our project in an ethical, respectful approach that is aligned with our mission. Luméris is a new female societal model designed to respond to the structural emergencies experienced by women around the world, therefore it is based on an exclusively female governance.

Men are welcome as allies, conscious builders, technical or logistical support, but without occupying decision-making functions for the maintenance of the merits of the mission.

MOTIVATION

Why do you want to join Luméris?

What form of involvement do you envisage? (Volunteering / intellectual contribution / one-off expertise / long-term involvement...)

How do you feel about the idea of a society exclusively governed by women, in which power relations are rethought in depth?

ETHICAL COMMITMENT

Luméris was founded to offer women what no other structure has ever given them: a space of total freedom, political, social and intellectual autonomy, without judgment based on masculine concepts.

The removal of men from decision-making spheres is a structural necessity in order to build an environment on foundations other than those imposed on a global scale by historical dynamics of domination that have often marginalized women. We are not trying to put you on the sidelines but to develop stereotypes other than those created by men over the centuries in an environment based on new values.

To be a man in Lumeris is to be aware that laws, medicine, education, research and structures are no longer centred on the male interest. To this end, we invite all men to question patriarchal norms and to contribute to the emergence of more equitable models. In return, because your contribution plays an essential role in the cohesion of the community, we are committed to ensuring your safety, well-being and personal development.

For the good of the project, it is essential to go beyond the structural patterns normalized by patriarchy that have long limited the participation of some. By opening decision-making spaces to a diversity of voices, we can together forge positive stereotypes, freed from the legacies of the past, and build structures where each individual feels legitimate and valued.

Otherwise, if any integration remains difficult and so that everyone can evolve in a framework that suits them, we will accompany you with kindness towards a departure towards the patriarchal society of your choice.

By joining Lumérís, you agree:

- That your contribution will be made outside of any search for power, hierarchy or control, in a logic of ethical and conscious support.
- Governance is led solely by women, to remain faithful to our original mission. Men do not have access to leading positions, nor to all voting rights, the latter being restricted according to the subjects dealt with.
- That your involvement is valuable and expected in areas such as activist support, logistics, technical, creative, administrative or philanthropic missions, depending on your skills and the needs of the community.
- Public comments or publications contrary to Lumérís' mission may lead to an immediate termination of any collaboration.
- Any form of violence, discrimination, verbal violence, or violation of fundamental rights is incompatible with our values.
- A check of your public publications can be carried out
